Time to Talk Turkey: Bird is the Word

West Chester, Pa. –With the holidays fast approaching, now is the perfect time to reserve a fresh, local turkey for your Thanksgiving feast.

Not only will buying a locally raised turkey keep more of your dollar in your community by supporting a local business, but it also means getting a fresh bird, not one that's been sitting in a freezer for months. An integral part of their communities, these farmers take pride in providing their neighbors with the best birds year after year, becoming part of their customers' annual holiday traditions. Also, supporting local farmers keeps valuable farmland in production and out of reach of potential developers.

"Supporting our local farmers is a great way to show how thankful we are for all the hard work they do all year long," says Chester County Ag Council Director Hillary Krummrich.

Here are some of the Chester County farmers who are selling locally raised turkeys this year:

- Canter Hill Farm (Malvern, Pa.)
- The Howe Turkey Farm (Downingtown, Pa.)
- Wynnorr Farm (Glen Mills, Pa.)
- Loag's Corner Turkey Farm (Elverson, Pa.), no website, call (610) 286-6084 to order

Considering where to buy the best ingredients for side dishes, gourmet cheese plates, and, of course, locally produced wines to compliment your meal? Check out the Chester County Local Farm Products Guide for these and other producers: www.landscapes2.org/adc/farmproducts.cfm
